Hepatitis means inflammation of the liver. Most often caused by a virus. There are many types, but types B and C are the most common.

Infection
Hepatitis B and C are more infectious than HIV and are spread when infected blood or body fluids enters someone’s body.

Testing
You can be tested for hepatitis B and C at this facility. Speak to a health worker at this site to find out more.

Protecting yourself
- Use sterile equipment if you use drugs
- Use condoms and lubricant when you have sex
- Never share nail clippers, toothbrushes or razors

Vaccination?
You can be vaccinated for hepatitis B

Cure?
Both infections can be managed and hepatitis C can be cured.
